new york times bestseller finalist for the national book award nonfiction how did humanity originate and why does a species like ours exist on this planet do we have a special place even a destiny in the universe where are we going and perhaps the most difficult question of all why in the meaning of human existence his most philosophical work to date pulitzer prize winning biologist edward o wilson grapples with these and other existential questions examining what makes human beings supremely different from all other species searching for meaning in what nietzsche once called the rainbow colors around the outer edges of knowledge and imagination wilson takes his readers on a journey in the process bridging science and philosophy to create a twenty first century treatise on human existence from our earliest inception to a provocative look at what the future of mankind portends continuing his groundbreaking examination of our anthropocene epoch which he began with the social conquest of earth described by the new york times as a sweeping account of the human rise to domination of the biosphere here wilson posits that we as a species now know enough about the universe and ourselves that we can begin to approach questions about our place in the cosmos and the meaning of intelligent life in a systematic indeed in a testable way once criticized for a purely mechanistic view of human life and an overreliance on genetic predetermination wilson presents in the meaning of human existence his most expansive and advanced theories on the sovereignty of human life recognizing that even though the human and the spider evolved similarly the poet s sonnet is wholly different from the spider s web whether attempting to explicate the riddle of the human species free will or religion warning of the collapse of biodiversity or even creating a plausible portrait of e t wilson does indeed believe that humanity holds a special position in the known universe the human epoch that began in biological evolution and passed into pre then recorded history is now more than ever before in our hands yet alarmed that we are about to abandon natural selection by redesigning biology and human nature as we wish them wilson soberly concludes that advances in science and technology bring us our greatest moral dilemma since god stayed the hand of abraham the ecological challenge demands a paradigm shift in our thinking about the human environment relation reconciling human existence with ecological integrity provides a state of the art account of work on ecological integrity and offers a compelling vision for the future derek bell senior lecturer at the school of geography politics and sociology university of newcastle a book of vast scope and richness if policymakers around the world took notice of this insightful set of messages we would all live with greater happiness health and wellbeing with a brighter future for our children and grandchildren lawrence o gostin o neill professor of global health law georgetown university law center this book attempts to do in theory what the world needs to do in practice it is an ecological master plan that shows how we can not only survive but also flourish james p sterba president of the american philosophical association central division ecosystems have been compared to a house of cards remove or damage a part and you risk destroying or fundamentally and irreversibly altering the whole protecting ecological integrity means maintaining that whole an aim which is increasingly difficult to achieve given the ever growing dominance of humanity this book is the definitive examination of the state of the field now and the way things may and must develop in the future written and edited by members of the global ecological integrity group an international collection of the worlds most respected authorities in the area the book considers the extent to which human rights such as the rights to food energy health clean air or water can be reconciled with the principles of ecological integrity the issue is approached from a variety of economic legal ethical and ecological standpoints providing an essential resource for researchers students and those in government or business in a wide range of disciplines humanity was created and brought into a framework of existence that had principles that were set prior to its existence both in the physical and spiritual realms respectively and collectively being crafted into the framework of existence humanity is subjected to the principles that preceded their formulation though the principles were formulated with humanity in mind and for the existence of humanity that came into being in a principle as per the law of framework that states everything exists in a principle from a principle and became from and through that principle in the mind of its author whose existence is by a principle in the framework of his or her own existence it is therefore significant for man to learn the rudiments of their existence to grasp the mysteries of life encapsulated within the framework of their existence that proceeded from a higher framework of existence for every framework produced is a testament of intelligence that is in a higher plane of existence compared to the plane of existence of their own work and or creation god s existence is as of the aforementioned in a higher plane of existence and is the highest plane of existence because he has no precedent today the human species is collectively confronting a complex existential crisis comprised of a number of diverse elements political economic religious technological and environmental the globalization of information and commerce has revealed to us the universality and interrelatedness of all of these factors a treatise of humanism is an attempt to address the human crisis through an examination of ourselves our past our possibilities for a future our common rational capacity which should give us hope and our common human nature as a philosophy of humanism this book shares many ideas with existentialism and it may in fact be viewed as a work of american existentialism focused on our common human condition and on what we may need to do to continue to survive and to thrive together not only as a species of life unified through reason but as an interrelated collectivity of unique human individuals the study of sport is often thought of simply in terms of the sport sciences this book explains how a phenomenological approach is capable of revealing the nature and meanings of sport in ways that are beyond the reach of the sciences and how the very concepts required by sport science stand in need of philosophical explanation the book has a didactic intention seeking to present and discuss ideas and tools developed in the phenomenological tradition in order to illuminate issues in sport in such a way as to be understandable for those without any previous knowledge or background there are clear and straightforward accounts of the ideas of central thinkers such as husserl heidegger merleau ponty and patocka and applications of central ideas to the analysis of particular issues such as the nature of risk sports the feint in football the problem of the instant replay the role of the sport psychologist the idea of bodily perception and the concept of transhumanism in relation to performance enhancement this book was originally published as a special issue of sport ethics and philosophy
