in this book owen cantrell focuses on politics and popular culture in the united states from 1980 to 2020 to argue that the twin structures of feeling of nostalgia and paranoia offered a pathway to address the changed relationship to history in this era that were a result of the backlash politics to the gains of the civil rights movement s focused on the myths and mythologies of european cultural history this volume seeks to address the present and past functions of foundation texts in the evolution of the european idea one of the specific objectives of this volume is to reconsider in the context of ongoing european expansion and integration the functionalist approach of benedict anderson according to whom imagined communities are to be distinguished not by their falsity genuineness but by the style in which they are imagined the common denominator of each of the essays contained in this volume is the problem of the discontinuity of time in relation to tradition cultural and individual memory as well as in relation to historical and literary narratives time becomes the locus of its own reflexivity it is self temporalized it undergoes endless reiteration within itself and needs a semantics which sets valid accents for specific moments jean bessiere abbott offers a fruitful new way to read science fiction one that also greatly enriches our understanding of western history and its impact on our collective imagination detailing the overlap of science fiction and western fiction especially relating to their mutual interest in and concerns about frontier expansionism he reveals an unsuspected common ground that informs the writings of both camps reviewing the work of many hugo and nebula award winners as well as drawing upon popular film and television series like the buck rogers serials abbott s study journeys across the far reaches of science fiction s universe late nineteenth and early twentieth century theorists such as freud durkheim weber and marx built their intellectual edifices on what they thought would be the remains or ruins of religion in the wake of modernization but today the decline and disappearance of religion can no longer be simply assumed in the face of contemporary entanglements of religion and violence the establishment of meaning and morality remains troubling the experience of loss and change remains paradoxically constant and new theoretical perspectives feminism race studies postcolonial studies queer studies postmodernism have emerged challenging the works that mourned religion and created meaning in earlier periods the effects of this ongoing experience of mourning and symbolic loss on culture on subjectivity and on the academic disciplines of religious studies though immense are poorly understood and underinterpreted in order to correct this lacuna in scholarly thought this volume brings together a notable group of scholars who examine the ways in which recent cultural transformations inform the place of religion in the modern world methodologically they represent the intersection of religious studies and the social scientific study of religion bringing the disciplines of psychology sociology and anthropology into this dialogue americans have had an enduring yet ambivalent obsession with the west as both a place and a state of mind michael l johnson considers how that obsession originated how it has determined attitudes toward and activities in the west and how it has changed over the centuries baudrillard's culture of simulation destroys our sense of paramount reality it has created as chris rojek puts it a huge refugee camp in which viewers dissociated from place and community are caught up in global indexing and dragging processes which no one controls what is thus also perversely inscribed within the cultural landscape is a nostalgia for authenticity for the dissimulated spaces and places which though no longer there stimulate their semiotic reconstructions and reproductions and yet the possibility of lying is the prioprium of semiosis as umberto eco has once remarked truth and falsity are inherent in the sign and in representation generally subverting the tertium non datur principle this book is an attempt to unmask representation to see through the signs of the real and through the real itself at the realm of simulation those signs are not only signs of what they signify but also signs of culture of the cultural real which the articles included in the volume try to penetrate from various theoretical and philosophical perspectives
